ROBBERS ENTER WOLTERS' SALOON

FOURTEEN DOLLARS, AUTOMATIC PISTOL, AND JEWELRY TAKEN SUNDAY NIGHT; $140 LEFT; SECOND ATTEMPT TUESDAY.

A bold robbery took place in this city last Sunday night, Wolters' saloon, corner of Grand avenue and San Bruno road, having been entered and $14 in cash, a pistol, a ring, a watch, and a stickpin taken. Not content with the results of their first visit, the robbers returned Tuesday and attempted to force an entrance to the place again, but for some reason did not gain admittance. The side door showed plainly Wednesday morning that it had been worked on but was still locked. In all probability the thieves were frightened away before they succeeded in their attempt.

It is the opinion of officers working on the case that Sunday night's robbery was the work of amateurs. The $14 taken was in change in the cash register, which had been left standing ajar. On a shelf beside the register was $140 in a drinking glass that the marauders overlooked. This was money taken from a "punch board" kept in the room, it being the custom of Wolters and his bar-keeper, James Taylor, to keep this money separate from that taken in across the bar. The pistol, watch and other articles taken were on the punch board at the time, a peculiar feature of the robbery being that two automatic pistols, four watches, and a number of articles of jewelry which were on the board at the time were left unmolested. Nothing else in the saloon was disturbed.

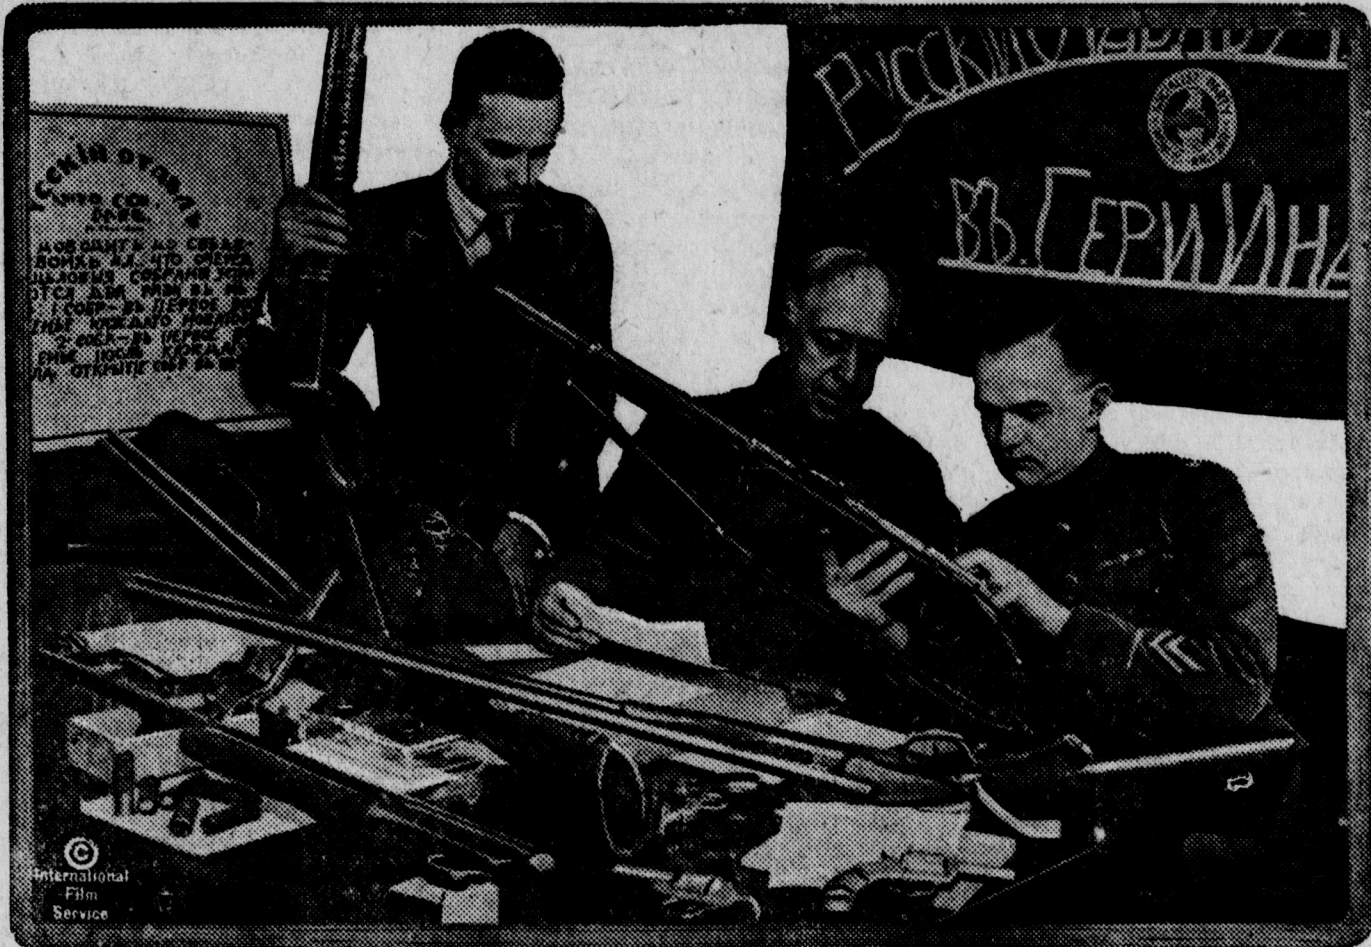

Another puzzling feature of the affair is that while Wolters, Taylor, and a man named Hudson were asleep in a room over the saloon Sunday night they heard nothing, although the side door had been opened by having a panel smashed, after which the thieves had evidently reached in and turned the knob of the spring lock and drawn a bolt. The front door bore evidence of having been tampered with, probably before the side door was forced.

No clue was left as to the identity of those who committed the robbery.

MAKES ATTEMPT TO PUSH BUILDING FROM FOUNDATIONS

A San Francisco woman named Mrs. E. C. Webb made a vigorous but ill-advised attempt to push the South City Lumber Company's office building off its foundations by driving against it with her car Tuesday afternoon. Result: one wall broken, one auto bumper totally ruined, one driver badly frightened, one carpenter's bill to pay. Mrs. Webb was driving west on Baden avenue and desired to turn south on Linden. She turned south and kept turning, her big Buick climbing over the east curb with neatness and dispatch and ramming the lumber company's building head on. The car's bumper saved the machine from damage, but ruined itself in so doing. The driver declared her steering gear stuck. Incidentally, the building still rests firmly on its foundations.

SECOND "Y" PROGRAM DRAWS BIG AUDIENCE

Hall Is Crowded to Its Capacity Thursday Night; Excellent Entertainment Given.

The Y. M. C. A. rooms were crowded to the doors Thursday evening for the second of the entertainments to be given in the new quarters. The program given last night proved most enjoyable. The next entertainment is announced for November 6th, at which time a program of magic, drama, and music will be given. It has been decided that because of the large number of children who come to these entertainments alone and are inclined to become noisy, that hereafter children under 14 years will not be admitted unless accompanied by their parents or elder persons.

Here is the program given Thursday evening:

Community singing, Miss Hazel Frost of San Francisco leader; trio, violin, 'cello and piano, Mr. Whitehead, Mrs. Van Valin and Miss Van Valin, Burlingame; college jingles, Lamb sisters, Redwood City; vocal solo, Joseph G. Walker, South San Francisco; piano solo, Miss Hazel Frost; violin solo, Mr. Whitehead; "What, Marry! Oh, No!" Lamb sisters.

NEXT MONDAY SET FOR AMERICANIZATION DAY

Governor William D. Stephens has designated Monday, October 27th, as Americanization Day in California.

William C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, has requested county and city school superintendents to arrange proper Roosevelt memorial exercises in the schools under their jurisdiction on that day.

The state committee of the Roosevelt Memorial Association has suggested that pastors of the churches throughout the state may be willing to devote a few sentences on Roosevelt in one of their sermons on October 26th, and that some pastor may be willing to take Roosevelt's Americanism as a theme on that day and to mention the fact that October 27th is the anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth; that it is Americanization Day in California and the final day of the Roosevelt memorial campaign in America.

WATCHING RICE AS IT IS MILLED

PROCESSES THROUGH WHICH RICE PASSES FROM "ROUGH" ARTICLE TO FINISHED AND "POLISHED" MANY AND VARIED

LITTLE JOURNEYS THROUGH THE INDUSTRIAL PLANTS OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, THE HOME OF MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

Few persons realize, unless they have taken a trip through a rice mill, the many operations necessary to remove the hulls from the rice and to reduce the kernel to the pearly white grains sold in the grocery. Few persons who have seen the big rice mill standing five stories high at the edge of the bay in South San Francisco have a definite idea of the maze of machinery the great building contains or of them any intricate processes through which the rice is put there.

The Busy Season

The busy season for the Growers' Rice Milling Company begins about October 1st. Most of the rice received at the local mill comes from the Sacramento valley. When the work is at its height a crew of from eighty to one hundred men is employed at the local plant and shifts are kept busy night and day. The mill has a capacity of from 4000 to 5000 sacks of "paddy" rice or about 2400 sacks of thoroughly cleaned and polished rice every twenty-four hours. As high as 25,000 bags of rice have been shipped from the plant in a single week.

Seeing Rice Milled

When the rice arrives at the mill with its hulls on and much straw and foreign matter in the bags, just as they come from the threshing machines, it is first trucked into the receiving shed, where the bags are cut open and the rice poured into a conveyor. This is some seventy-five or eighty feet long and runs under the floor of the shed. It is merely a zinc-

W. H. DINNING CAPTURES THIEF

FINDS MAN STARTING OFF IN CAR PARKED AT CURB; AFTER CHASE OF TWO BLOCKS MAN IS CAUGHT AND JAILED.

There are persons in this town who would not believe that W. H. Dinning, manager of the South City Lumber and Supply Company, could qualify as a foot-racer for architectural reasons. Such persons should have been in San Francisco on Ellis street near Mason Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock, and they would have been convinced of their error. And thereby hangs a tale of a car that was not stolen and of a bold, bad auto thief who now languishes in jail.

It all came about in the manner set forth and described as follows:

Tuesday evening Mr. Dinning drove to the city in his palatial car, the make of which will not be mentioned as it is not desired to further advertise the works of one Henry Ford. Mr. Dinning parked his vehicle on Ellis street near Mason. His object in so doing and his errand matters not. Mr. Dinning was away from the car about ten or fifteen minutes. On his return he found a man endeavoring to start the machine, the key to which lay in Mr. Dinning's pocket. The fellow had pulled the wires out of each side of the switch and was joining them to form the circuit outside the cutoff. On the sidewalk stood another man, evidently a confederate.

Mr. Dinning approached and, naturally somewhat interested, asked the man in the car if he were having trouble, whereupon that worthy replied he was, but at that moment the circuit was completed and the faithful engine, making no distinction between rightful owner and thief, started. Seeing no time was to be lost, Mr. Dinning grasped the bold miscreant. The thief, rudely awakened to his danger, broke loose, leaving a considerable portion of his coat in Dinning's grasp. Up the street the thief ran, his would-be captor in hot pursuit, shouting "Stop thief," or words to that effect. The chase lasted two blocks and was participated in by several bystanders. But alas for the thief! He met a doughty policeman who with great shrewdness grasped the situation and the fugitive at the same instant. In the excitement the man's partner in crime disappeared.

At the police station the man, who was evidently about 35 years of age, gave the name of Calvin Ruffles, and claimed to have come to San Francisco recently from Bakersfield. Asked where he was staying, he gave an address on O'Farrell street, and a search of his room revealed a pistol, rifle, and shotgun, all loaded, which incline the police to the opinion that he and his pal had planned to steal the car with the intention of driving somewhere with further evil intentions in view. In the man's quarters were found also a considerable quantity of good clothing, many books, and other articles showing that he had lived in comfort and style. In his pocket were found a bankbook with $342 deposited to his credit in a San Francisco bank, some mining stock, and a registration card showing he had lived in Nevada.

Mr. Dinning swore out a complaint charging the man with grand larceny.

NEXT INSTITUTE WILL BE HELD HERE

School Teachers of San Mateo County Choose South San Francisco as Meeting Place 1920.

The next institute of the San Mateo county school teachers will be held in South San Francisco. This was decided at the last day's session of the institute held at Halfmoon Bay last week. The meeting in this city will be in October of next year.

The teachers of the county took action to form an organization to deal with problems confronting members of the profession in this county and also to participate in national educational questions. Miss Anna T. Haley of San Mateo was elected temporary chairman of the new organization with B. E. Myers of Redwood City as temporary chairman. Mr. Myers will appoint a committee of the members at large to draw up a constitution, which will be submitted to the members next month. It is expected that the influence of the organization will be exerted in a number of ways that will result beneficially in educational problems in this county.

At the last day's session the teachers were addressed by Dr. William McAndrew of New York City, who spoke on "The Royal Road to Learning." Others on the program were Miss Bessie McCabe of the San Jose normal, who spoke on "Reading," Miss E. Murchie, who gave a talk on "Home Economics," and Lawrence Chenoweth, who spoke on "Americanization and Letters from Teachers."

HILL FAST BEING DUG AWAY BY BIG STEAM SHOVEL

The hill near the corner of Pine and Maple avenues is rapidly being leveled by the Ralsch Improvement Company, their big steam shovel eating its way into the hillside with astonishing speed. The earth is being dumped into the hollow at the corner. On the section of Pine avenue west of Maple the concrete base of the paving has been laid and the surface is now being put on. Pine avenue as it winds around the base of the hill is truly a scenic drive on a small scale, a splendid view of the city and bay being afforded.

WATCHING RICE.

lined trough, perhaps a foot wide and deep, through the entire length of which a long, wide-flanged screw is constantly turning. By the motion of this screw the rice is kept constantly moving forward along the trough. Practically all horizontal moving of rice in the mill is done by these screw conveyors which work silently, efficiently, tirelessly.

The rice is conveyed into great storage bins or goes immediately to the mill to be cleaned, hulled, and polished. There are six of the bins, each with a capacity of 2100 bags of the "rough" rice, or the rice before it is milled.

The First Process.

The first thing to be done is to remove all straws and foreign substances. This is done through a succession of screens rapidly agitated. Some of the lighter and immature grain is separated early, too. This is ground with a small percentage of hulls into rough flour and bran that goes largely into stock foods. The lighter chaff and refuse is disposed of through blowpipes that convey it to big piles outside the mill. There are sixteen of these long pipes connected with big fans that supply the necessary current of air.

Through Mazes of Apparatus

One soon loses track of the continuity of processes through which the rice passes. It goes through great stones set so carefully that the hull is rubbed loose without grinding the kernels. It is elevated to the top of the tall building in the group that comprise the rice mill. Down it comes again through chutes. Back up to the top floor it is carried, to return to the lower floor again. In all, it passes from the first and second floors and the top floor sixteen times. The great rooms through which it passes are forests of chutes and elevators with an endless number of sifters, graders, breakers, monitors, etc.

One of the prime reasons for milling rice is to remove the eye or "germ" at the end of the grain. This germ is high in food value, dieticians claim, but with it in the rice is very prone to spoil and the germ, too, is the favorite food for weevils. "Paddy" rice has the germ still in it and is unpolished and dark in color and therefore less marketable, yet "paddy" rice is more highly nutritive than the finished and polished grain.

The polishing is done with two big "brushes," large cylinders with leather flanges, that whirl the rice about until it is rubbed clean and white. Sometimes when the rice first begins to reach the mill early in the season it is not thoroughly dried. Then powdered talc, the same substance that gets rubbed on my lady's nose oft-often and again, is mixed with it during the hulling process to take away its stickiness.

In one room hogsheads of glucose yield the "coating" that is employed in making "coated" rice.

Down on the ground floor is some interesting equipment more easy for the ordinary visitor to understand than the appliances where the multitudinous milling processes take place. Most people have seen the sack-sewers on a threshing machine sew up the top of grain bags. At the rice mill this sewing is done by machinery more evenly, more dexterously, more quickly than the best human sack-sewer can do it. The rice pours down a chute from the upper regions of the mill. At the mouth of the chute an automatic weighing machine holds the bag in place. When 100 pounds of grain has flowed into the receptacle the stream is automatically shut off and the full bag on a traveling apron goes to the sewing machine. Another ingenious machine cleans the kernels of rice from the empty bags in which the "rough" rice reaches the mill. Because of the tendency of the rice hull to cling to the rough bag, this is an important item. Before this machine, which cleans the bag by suction, was installed this cleaning process was done imperfectly and tediously by beating the bag.

It is an interesting place, the rice mill, and one comes away with a more definite understanding of the important position rice occupies in the scheme of our daily life, for the mill's products include not only the familiar commercial rice of the grocer's counter, in several different grades, but also "screenings," "brewers'" rice, "coated" rice, bran, and No. 2 bran.

SAM CURUSIS BACK FROM SIBERIAN SERVICE

Sam Curusis of this city reached San Francisco Monday from Siberia, where he has seen a year and a half of service with the American forces. He came in on the transport Logan.

RAIN GLADDENING HEARTS OF FARMERS AND STOCKMEN

The rain that began to fall last night has been very welcome to most farmers. It is believed that very little damage has been done to late crops of fruit. The cattlemen are especially happy, as the moisture will keep the grass which started a month ago growing well.

WELFARE CLUB TO HOLD DANCE AND WHIST PARTY

The Welfare Club of the Western Meat Company has made arrangements to hold a whist party next Tuesday night at the clubrooms. A kewpie raffle will be held during the evening and refreshments will be served. Dancing is also on the program.

SEARCH IS BEING MADE FOR MISSING BOY SCOUT

Officers of the local troop of Boy Scouts have received the following self-explanatory letter:

Scoutmasters, Attention

A Boy Scout named Frank Cochran, of Troop 72 and residing in San Bruno, Calif., has been missing since Monday morning, when he was last seen at Onondaga and Mission streets. He has brown hair, gray-blue eyes, and is somewhat freckled. When last seen he wore an old Scout uniform which was almost white. The uniform has the number "72" on the arm.

Please ask your boys to make every effort to locate him, as it is thought he is still in San Francisco, and the parents are prostrated.

Hoping that you will be able to help us in this very serious matter, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
RAYMOND HANSON,
Scout Executive.

"We wasn't saying anything till old Wallen got killed, for whatever he was after he was bound to lead us to along with him, eh?"

"Then he shuffled out, and there wasn't anything in his papers that was any good to us—except that money that I turned over to kind of woo your confidence, if you get the idea! But we figured that what he knew the son would know, so mebbe you can figure out why we started to follow the Upolo's itinerary."

"Well, we played in luck—we found you. So long as we thought you were the son we let you have your head, just as we'd done with the old man, without trying to force your hand, because"—he grinned wickedly—"we're a patient lot."

"But now that I find we're birds of a feather, my lad, we ain't playing that game any more."

"Now, then, we know you were on the Upolo with young Wallen, and what I want to know is what he told you before he died that started you going. You come across with that, and we'll play fair on the divvy; if you don't, you'll wish to whatever saints you swear by that you were in the hands of the authorities answering for that throat-slitting job back in Singapore, instead of in mine! That's a plain statement—eh? Well, what d'ye say?"

"I say that I'm Wallen," said Wallen steadily. "That I committed no murder in Singapore, and that this treasure-hunt idea is pure imagination."

Captain Laynton scowled. "You coax a mule first," he said significantly; "after that you slam h— out of him. However, I ain't through coaxing yet. Come along to my cabin."

They entered the captain's cabin; and Laynton, spreading out a chart on the locker, stabbed at it with his forefinger.

"Anything familiar about that?" he grunted.

Wallen leaned forward. "Certainly," he replied, in surprise. "It's the north coast of Arru, where Mac-

Indicated the Position.

Knight's station is—where I was brought ashore after I was picked up."

Laynton snorted savagely, and picking up a pair of dividers indicated the position with exact precision.

"To the north a bit, among those islands!" he snapped. "You know fast enough what I mean!"

Wallen shook his head.

"Don't you!" Laynton rasped. "Well, how about this?" He pulled a piece of paper from his pocket, and flattened it out on the chart. "They correspond, don't they? You dropped this out of your pocket. I had a Kanaka aboard then, who picked it up and gave it to me."

He smiled at Wallen unpleasantly. "I haven't got that Kanaka now. He disappeared. There's something damned queer about it—and about those shots last night, wouldn't you say? D'ye think I'm a fool—d'ye think

I wouldn't stake my oath that meaty-mouthed Indian you brought aboard with you didn't fire 'em? But I still thought you were Wallen then, and I was still for giving you all the rope you wanted."

"Well, here's the latitude and longitude on the paper and here's the position on the chart, and I guess in a general way we're pretty hot on the scent—it's only the few details that may be lacking when we get there that I'm asking you to supply. What?"

It was a moment before Wallen spoke.

The position given on that piece of paper had come, Gunga had said, direct from Ram Gulab Singh. There were many islands around Mac-Knight's station, and among them, evidently enough now, Ram Gulab Singh had his lair.

"Do you mean," he asked abruptly, "that you are going there?"

"D'ye think there's any doubt about it?" returned Laynton caustically.

"Then," said Wallen earnestly, "I warn you, you're running the head of every one aboard this ship into a noose. If you want the truth of the whole business, it's this: Years back my father had trouble with a powerful native named Ram Gulab Singh, who was and is the head of many of the Malay pirates that infest these waters. The man swore revenge. The feud still exists."

"It was to save me from a plot Ram Gulab Singh had hatched to murder me on the Upolo that my father chartered you. Furthermore, there was no accident aboard here when my father died. It was this Kanaka, that you say has disappeared, who murdered him—the man who started this cock-and-bull story about treasure because he is in Ram Gulab Singh's pay, and that paper he gave you was to lure the ship into his master's claws if he was unsuccessful in doing away with my father himself."

"He did away with my father, but he still gave you the paper for the same purpose, except, of course, that I am substituted in my father's place."

There was an incredulous sneer on the faces of the two men.

"Sounds almost as fishy as you writing yourself down dead in the log!" commented Laynton, with an ugly laugh. "Of course, you don't want us to go there, eh! Well, that's all right, and thanks for the warning; but don't worry about us coming to any harm, though it does credit to your heart! We don't scare aboard this ship. Mebbe if there was the prospect of a bit of a scrap it wouldn't stand in our way none, either. Have you by any chance taken note of the crew?"

A sort of savage anger came upon Wallen.

"I grant you they look like cut-throats," he said evenly.

"You're wrong!" rejoined Laynton with evil smoothness. "You ain't half looked at 'em, and you don't do 'em credit. Fallen angels are saints alongside of 'em; and there ain't one of 'em but has been aboard here with me for the matter of a good few years—which proves that your yarn about the Kanaka and this 'ere friend of yours Ram What-d'ye-call-him is another lie."

"Tain't likely you've ever heard of the Monleigh before, because we've got a superstition aboard here that keeping the same name too long is bad luck."

"When we carry cargo it's because times are infernally poor and the picking thin—the crew has got a preference for private pearl beds, or mebbe the opium trade, or I've even known 'em to horn in on a bit of black-birding by way of variety. We've been living under a kind of righteous restraint, Mr. Man, out of deference to who we thought you were, and I could see the crew was sort of chafing under it; but I guess you'll get a better idea of things from now on, and by the time we get down off Arru again you won't need to be told what to expect if you don't come around to our way of thinking."

THE EMPTY CAN.

The police in many communities are giving a good report of prohibition. There is a noticeable decrease in crimes of certain kinds. Disorderly hoodlums grow scarcer; wife-beaters diminish; cases of cruelty to children are fewer.

But the need of caution is not gone. Prohibition is a national confession that we cannot be trusted to control our appetites. We behave better with light handcuffs on, and herein is the wisdom of prohibition. But we have appetites to which alcohol never ministered, and their mastery of us is a commonplace to all who read the daily history of our larger towns.

NOT ALWAYS—BUT GENERALLY.

One day in the early part of September a lady went into a store in a middle western town to buy material for a winter coat. The salesman showed her various grades of cloth, and she picked one which was worth about $10, but the price was $15. She returned the following day to make the purchase, but learned that the price had advanced to $17.50 per yard. She reminded the salesman of the price quoted on the previous day, and was told that another store on the same street was selling similar material at $17.50. The wholesaler had therefore served notice that unless the price was increased to $17.50, the store's contract for additional cloth would be canceled.

This word "profiteer" is becoming as monotonous as the word "camouflage" was until it went out of fashion. "Profiteer" is now more overworked than any other word in the language; and, like most overworked words, it gradually loses its meaning—or rather, it tends to mean almost anything.

A man is not necessarily a profiteer if he makes a profit—or if he makes a large profit. It is dishonest to make no profit, because a man who makes nothing ceases to be self-dependent. He is obliged to live at the expense of some one else, which no man should do while he is able to earn a living.

A man is a profiteer who, without rendering any service, manipulates conditions with the sole motive of making necessities expensive. To sell an article for the highest price one can get is justifiable. The labor unionists certainly sell their labor at that price. But a man who makes a systematic business of creating scarcity to send prices higher is a profiteer like the clothing wholesaler mentioned above.

To kill a man is not necessarily to commit murder. It depends on the attendant conditions and the governing motive. It has been done several times in France with an excellent motive.

To sell articles at a high price is not necessarily profiteering. But it can be, under certain conditions; and it is important that diligent investigations should discover what the conditions are.

THE NAUGHTY MOVIE SHOWS.

As most towns have their moving picture shows, there is logic in the conjecture that any movie problem is the problem of this town also. If the class of exhibits dispensed in any locality calls down public condemnation in any town, it is fair to assume that plant-minded citizens in other towns are being perverted by the same brand of naughty entertainment.

We need not wait, therefore, until a crusade starts in our midst. We may, for aught we know, be tasting poison unawares. No doubt in many places there is indignation among the supremely righteous at the reels which present grand larceny, murder and sudden death among their multicolored programs. In many places the inhabitants are forbidden to see these things, for fear that the instinct of imitation should lead them to murder and to rob.

Unfortunately, those who are thus shielded from contamination may draw the inference that the only things they must not do are the things they never see. Whatever they are not forbidden by public ordinance to witness, they may freely imitate. And heaven knows that no code of ordinances can hide all evil from their eyes.

The principle which relies absolutely on censorship is a bad one. It relieves the individual of responsibility. He feels that if legislation can not make him good by clockwork, then it is not his fault if he is bad. Legislation, if we trust the inferences, has undertaken to keep him pure—by clockwork; has guaranteed him a kind of clockwork virtue. What will become of him when the wheels of restrictive legislation cease turning—when the sumptuary clock runs down?

Prohibition seemed unavoidable. We apparently had decided not to stay sober and to keep control of a certain appetite. That particular appetite, therefore, is controlled for us by machinery. But if we depend absolutely upon machinery, and refuse to rely upon our strength of will, our sense of morality, our self-respect, then these uplifting forces will be atrophied by disuse, and die.

There is murder in Hamlet, in Macbeth, in the books of Genesis and Exodus—in nearly every one of the narrative books of the Bible. The portrayal of these happenings need be no more harmful on the screen than in the pulpit.

With the prices of women's gowns prowling around in the skies, the old-fashioned sewing circle should become again an aristocratic feature of feminine life.

The young man who learns to depend first upon himself will seldom have to appeal to others.

When you want a thing and haven't got it, the obvious thing is to go out and get it. It will not come to you.

The idle and the feeble appeal to fortune for succor. The man of resolution carves it out for himself.

Editors and preachers are presumed to be the most holy of men. And, incidentally, their pay is the most unholy.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Under this heading The Enterprise will publish, from week to week, a series of excellent recipes written especially for this paper by a woman who has had a university training in domestic science and a wide experience in cooking in her own home. Every recipe has been thoroughly tested and will be found economical and palatable.

Risotto Creole

- 1 cup rice.
- 2 tablespoons fat.
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion.
- 1 cup tomato pulp.
- 2 teaspoons salt.
- 3 cups of meat stock or hot water.
- 1 cup grated cheese.
- 1. Boil the rice five minutes, drain and rinse with cold water.
- 2. Melt fat, add the onion and rice and cook, stirring, until the fat is absorbed.
- 3. Add the tomato, a dash of cayenne pepper and the stock or water.
- 4. Cover and let simmer until the rice is tender.
- 5. Add cheese and cook until melted. This may be served on toast. It is much cheaper than meat and potatoes and supplies both the starch and protein that would be obtained from meat and potatoes.

Bean Loaf

- 1½ cups bean pulp.
- ½ cup crumbs moistened with a little hot milk.
- 1 teaspoon salt.
- Pinch of cayenne pepper.
- ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning or sage.
- 1. Mix the above, having it quite dry, and mold into a roll.
- 2. Put a little butter or bacon fat on top.
- 3. Brown in oven.
- 4. This is nice served with tomato sauce and fried apples.

Yeast Muffins

- 1 cup milk.
- 1½ cups sifted flour.
- 1-3 cup sugar.
- 1 cake of compressed yeast.
- 1. Mash yeast and mix with one-fourth cup lukewarm water.
- 2. Mix above ingredients, beat well and set in a warm place (not hot) to rise to double its size.
- Then beat the mixture down and beat into it the following:
- 1½ cups flour.
- ½ teaspoon salt.
- 1-3 cup melted fat.
- 1 egg, well beaten.
- Pour into well-greased muffin tins, filling them half full.
- Again set in a warm place and let rise to double their size.
- Bake twenty-five to thirty minutes in a moderate oven.
- These are delicious split open and toasted.

MR. AND MRS. D. L. SMITH GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY

A number of the members of the Methodist church and their friends gave a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. David L. Smith at their apartments in the Kenoth apartment house Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married Sunday, October 12th, Mrs. Smith having come from her home in Sarcokie, Mo., and the party was in the nature of a get-acquainted affair and to welcome Mrs. Smith to this city. The self-invited guests took refreshments with them and after a pleasant evening spent in conversation and games the refreshments were served to the company. Their guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Smith with a cut glass vase. Beside Mr. and Mrs. Smith, those present included Mr. and Mrs. David Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Whitten, Mrs. Elizabeth Coffinberry, Mrs. Caroline Coffinberry, Mrs. Jeffrick, Mrs. Elsie Brown, Mrs. M. Still, Mrs. Schemp, Mrs. A. P. Scott, Misses Marie and Emma Burns, Miss Winifred Culp, Miss Ivy Wilkinson, Miss Mabel Whitten, Robert Baldwin, and Rev. Daniel Stevens.

Curate—Well, my good man, and how are you getting along now?
Good Man—Oh, not so bad, sir. But wages are so very low.
Curate—Why, only the other day I heard you had had an increase.
Good Man—Yes, but that was in the family, sir.—Tit-Bits.

Fall Blouses Are Different

Along with other of our apparel for every day wear blouses have slipped into more elaborate styles than have characterized them for several seasons. Just now they reflect the rich and glorious colors of autumn foliage and presage a cheerful winter. Georgette crepe remains the favorite material for making them, and its texture robs the bright glowing colors used of any garishness. It has a refinement of its own to lend to any color. Another style feature of the new fall blouses is the persistence of peplums on them, and still another is the combination of two colors of georgette in one blouse. Also there is a choice between several neck finishings. One may have a high, straight collar that buttons up the front or side, a rolling collar, a small sailor or cape collar or the round or "V" shaped, plain neck finish, without any collar. The smock made a great success in the summer, and hence the great number of blouses with peplums or short skirts. One of these is shown in the picture above, and be not dismayed if your dealer shows it to you in a vivid nasturtium red or gold, or a warm purple or flashing turquoise blue. Make up your mind to array yourself like the lily of the field—or find yourself tamely appareled along with more brilliant sisters who follow the trend of the mode.

The blouse pictured is embellished with embroidery, or more properly needle work, employing two colors, one of them black and the other matching the blouse. This touch of black tones down many a bright color in blouses. This blouse is gathered in at the waistline and a narrow ribbon, to match it, serves for a girdle. It is a slip-over model, which necessitates an elastic band for the waistline, unless it is provided with a casing having a ribbon run through it. The elastic band is more convenient and the girdle wears better when it is made to hook or snap together under a bow at the ends.

JUDGE LAMB BY THICKNESS, COMPACTNESS, AND COLOR

Lamb can be one of the most delicious varieties of meat or it can be one of the most distasteful, according to its quality and the way it is prepared before and during cooking.

Plenty of people, who formerly had classed lamb among the foods they disliked, have learned to like it when it was prepared properly. The strong mutton flavor so objectionable to many is located principally in the thin membranous skin and outer fat of a cut of lamb or mutton. A sharp knife will take it off easily. Epicures declare that a good leg of lamb with this skin and the superfluous fat removed, rubbed with butter and roasted, can not be excelled in the meat line for delicacy of flavor.

How to Know Good Lamb

If the consumer wants to know the grade of lamb he is buying, there are a few cardinal points to observe, the Bureau of Markets, Department of Agriculture, points out. Keeping them in mind will lessen the chances of disappointment over the quality of the cut when it is served.

The points by which the several grades of lamb may be determined after the carcass has been divided into cuts are not so pronounced as in beef. The grade must largely be determined by the thickness and compactness of the meat and by the color of the lean meat.

The "choice" grade represents the highest quality of meat offered. The lean meat is of a pinkish color and the fat is uniform, white and brittle. The cuts of meat are thick and compact and have a fair percentage of fat. The bones are small and inclined to be soft.

The "good" grade resembles "choice" in most respects, but may lack some of the essential points. The amount of fat may be less and it may not be so evenly distributed. The color of the lean meat is the same as in "choice," but in each case the retail cut of meat must show that the animal was in a well-nourished condition at the time of slaughter. This is indicated by the firmness of the meat and a liberal amount of fat.

The Lower Grades

The "medium" grade represents the next lower quality, and the principal point which determines this grade is a lack of outside and inside fat. The lean meat has a dull appearance and lacks the firmness found in the two higher grades. The lean meat also frequently has a watery appearance. The bones are usually small, but the percentage of meat is much lower than in the better grades.

The "common" grade is the lowest grade usually found in the markets. The meat has every appearance of the animal having been poorly fed. The bones are prominent and the percentage of meat is small. The almost entire lack of fat is strikingly noticeable. The small percentage of lean meat has a flabby appearance and is dull in color.

RED CROSS OF COUNTY TO MEET IN BURLINGAME

The annual meeting of the San Mateo County Chapter, American Red Cross, will be held in the Burlingame Woman's Clubhouse Thursday evening, October 30th, at 8 o'clock. This is to be a most important meeting, as it brings together all of the members in the county. The speaker will be Colonel George Filmer, manager of the Pacific division, A. R. C., which will be an event in the history of this chapter.

The usual drive for memberships of the American Red Cross will be held from November 2d to 11th this year, instead of Christmas time. This date has been chosen at the anniversary of the signing of the armistice as a time when all members will wish to renew their allegiance to this great humanitarian organization. The renewals will date from January 1st for the year 1920, so no one will forfeit any of this year's membership. There are now over 6000 members in this county and the Red Cross hopes to make it 10,000 this year.

PLAN RELIGIOUS SURVEY.

The Protestant churches of the bay region are preparing to conduct a religious survey this month in connection with the interchurch world movement which seeks to unify the efforts of all churches and avoid duplication of labor and expenditure in any one field. Del Norte Winning, pastor of the Methodist church, has charge of the survey in the San Bruno district.

TRUSTEES APPOINT OFFICER FOR HIGHWAY

At the regular meeting of the San Bruno trustees all members were present, also a large number of San Bruno residents. The case of assault and battery brought by Thomas Forster of Belle Air Park against Frank Steward, poundmaster and deputy marshal, was discussed at the meeting. The case will be tried in Justice W. J. Smith's court at San Bruno, October 29th. J. F. Davis, city attorney, will represent the defendant, and J. W. Coleberd of South San Francisco the plaintiff. The case grew out of an argument between Stewart and Forster's boy, Stewart alleging the boy was leading a cow on the sidewalk. Forster claims that Stewart pulled the boy's ear and that when he, Forster senior, remonstrated, struck him.

William Kidd of Huntington Park was appointed a deputy marshal to serve on the county highway three hours a day when the children are going to and from school, at a salary of $35 a month. This appointment was made at the request of the Parents-Teachers' Association. The question of a new municipal water system for San Bruno was brought up for discussion, but no action was taken.

K. OF C. WHIST PARTY SCORES GREAT SUCCESS

As predicted in The Enterprise last week, the Knights of Columbus whist party last Saturday evening was a brilliant success. The large hall was filled to capacity, forty-seven tables being necessary to accommodate the card players, the spectators being forced into the anterooms.

After the games the floor was cleared and the jolly crowd enjoyed themselves to their heart's content to the delightful, up-to-the-minute music of the K. of C. orchestra. It was the happiest, most sociable gathering which has been gotten together in these parts in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant," and a repetition in the near future is eagerly looked for by all the young folks.

The prize for the highest score went to Harry Palmer, San Bruno, William H. Rapp of San Mateo being a close second. Among the other fortunate winners were Mr. Osmus and Mrs. Osmus, George W. Edwards, Carl Hultberg, Mrs. T. Morececk, Mrs. E. Travioli, South San Francisco, T. Mulker and others. Mr. Clark of the candy store won a ham, as did also Mrs. F. Zanetti of Lomita Park. Door prizes fell to the lot of Mrs. Ahnert of Lomita Park and H. Muelndner.

TRUCK AND AUTO COLLIDE.

An accident occurred Sunday evening about 7 o'clock at the San Bruno crossing, when G. Martinelli's truck ran down a motorcyclist who was riding without a taillight. Fortunately the young man was not seriously injured. The truck was badly damaged. Mr. Martinelli's son, Augustine, was driving the auto.

MANY ATTEND MEET OF P.-T. ASSOCIATION

The Parents-Teachers' Association held its regular meeting at Northbrae school Tuesday afternoon. There was a very large attendance of parents and teachers. A communication was read stating that the application made for some one to be stationed on the highway during the hours when the children would be going to and from school had been granted by the school and city trustees. The secretary read a letter from the Y. M. C. A. of San Francisco stating that they had some steel lockers for sale. After discussion it was decided to have a committee appointed to investigate and report as soon as possible, and Mrs. J. Lindsey and Mrs. Hatfield were chosen. Mrs. Callaghy of the entertainment committee reported that the children in Edgemont and Northbrae schools were preparing their parts and would be ready for rehearsal Thursday or Friday. The children are selling the tickets for 25 cents each, one ticket with stu to admit one grown person or two children to the dance and entertainment. The gathering voted to have Dr. Adelaide Brown or some other well-known lecturer give the children talks on hygiene and care of the body.

Mrs. A. W. Grundy of Huntington Park gave an interesting talk on "American Citizenship and the Proper Use of the Ballot," and also suggested that there should be a night school in San Bruno. Arrangements are being made to secure this school if possible.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the committee who raised money to pay for the two beautiful palm plants for Edgemont school, Mrs. William Holliday having reported that the money had been procured.

Mrs. V. G. Hammond, a recent arrival from Salt Lake City who intends making her home here, gave some suggestions and told how things were done in Salt Lake, her talk being well received.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL ORGANIZED

Dr. James W. Harris, Ph. D. John Hopkins University, and head of the department of psychology at the College of the Pacific, San Jose, will conduct the discussion this week at the community school of religious education held every Friday night at the community Methodist church. This represents a co-operative effort on the part of the teachers and parents in the churches to supply the need for religious education and leadership in this community. Other speakers of interest will be present as members of the faculty each Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH PLAN MASQUERADE PARTY

A Hallowe'en masquerade party is being planned by the young people of the Methodist church for Friday evening, October 31st. Trials of fate, ghost stories, unique decorations and many other attractions are promised by the committee. Wilbur Dickson, James Forster, Roy Moritz, and Paul Forster went to San Francisco this week to confer with the Epworth League Alliance regarding details. Representatives of the alliance promised to be present and assist in the program. All masqueraders are invited to assemble at the San Bruno Methodist community church at 8 o'clock Hallowe'en night.

People You Know as They Come and Go.

Tom Connelly of Pittsburg, Calif., was a caller in town Friday.

F. C. Rice, county recorder, was in town Saturday and made The Enterprise a call.

John Hayes arrived in this city from Los Angeles Sunday. He is employed at the steel works.

C. Patterson arrived from East Chicago, Ind., Monday and started working in the steel mill.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Knott were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Becker of Pittsburg over last week-end.

Peter Decker has returned to the steel works, after spending the summer at his Nevada ranch.

The steel workers are making preparations for their annual Thanksgiving eve dance.

Charles Baker has taken a position as roller on the 10-inch mill at the Pacific Coast Steel plant.

Miss Flossie Davis of San Francisco has recently been visiting her parents at their home on Miller avenue.

Mrs. John Vujtech of Cottonwood, Calif., was a visitor Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cunningham.

Mrs. A. D. Willits of San Bruno has been acting as city clerk this week in the absence of W. J. Smith. It has been noted that the city hall seems to have been quite a center of attraction since Monday, some of the taxpayers even returning a second time declaring they had forgotten they had already paid up.

Miss Theda Belli and Miss Maggie Ahern of the South San Francisco Hospital entertained Miss E. Hildebrandt of San Francisco Sunday. The three young ladies were army nurses at Kelly Field, Texas, during the war. Miss Hildebrandt, whose home is in New York, came to San Francisco recently to practice her profession.

The sewing circle of the Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Dotson on Miller avenue for an all-day session Thursday. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The members present expressed sorrow that with the holding of their bazaar their weekly meetings will come to an end, as they have taken much pleasure from their social gatherings during the summer. Mrs. Shamp invited the circle to meet at her home next Thursday and the invitation was accepted. There were fourteen ladies present.

RED MEN TO GIVE BIG MASQUERADE BALL NOV. 1

The local lodge of Red Men is planning a masquerade ball the evening of Saturday, November 1st, at Fraternal Hall. It is expected that there will be a large attendance of the fraternity members and their friends from all over the county. Fifty dollars in cash prizes will be given away for the best-dressed maskers. Costumes have been placed for rent at W. C. Schneider's store.

DECLARES HIMSELF INSANE AND ASKS TO BE LOCKED UP

Mrs. A. D. Willits, acting city clerk, was much startled Thursday when a strange man walked into the city hall, declared himself insane, and asked to be locked up. The man later gave the name of John Lynch. Examined by Dr. T. C. Doak, he stated that he was 52 years old and had been subject to epileptic fits since he was 16. He talked rationally but seemed in a depressed frame of mind, partly, it is believed, as a result of drinking. Late Thursday afternoon B. H. Truax took him to the county hospital for observation and care.

The Enterprise can be bought at the Peninsula Drug Store.

MANY MAKE APPLICATION FOR STATE FARM LAND

That fifty of the sixty-three tracts of land varying in area from 4000 to 12,000 acres offered to the State Land Settlement Board in response to its invitations for offers two months ago are suited to settlement and will be settled by the 1000 ex-service men who have already applied for farms, is the opinion of Dr. Elwood Mead, chairman of the board of professor of rural institutions in the University of California.

It is impossible, however, according to Professor Mead, now to buy more than one or two tracts, since the Land Settlement Board's funds are restricted at the present time to the million dollars appropriated by the last legislature. "This will not go very far," declared Dr. Mead.

The lands offered to the board are now not cultivated at all or are cultivated by tenants. "The benefits that would come to this state and the addition to its social and political strength from peopling these tracts with families wedded to the soil and making a good living as the settlers at Durham are doing, can scarcely be overstated. It would lessen the dangers of non-resident ownership, of tenantry and alien control of land which now confront the state," said Professor Mead.

REAL ESTATE COMPANY MAKES REALTY PURCHASE

A real estate transfer of considerable interest took place a few days ago when the E. C. Peck Investment Company purchased from the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company lots 2, 3, and 5; 2, 3, 4, 5, and 7; 1, 2, and 3; 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, and 1, 2, 3, and 5 in blocks 8, 9, 10, 7, and 5, respectively. E. C. Peck states that he believes a big increase in the value of local real estate is imminent and that the property his company has just purchased will raise in value at least $200 a lot when contemplated improvements are made.

Mr. Peck's company now has nine houses in this city in course of construction, one of them being a six-room bungalow on Miller avenue being built for Jerry Horkey.
